Immigrating into the European Union is getting easier with the Blue Card

flexible HR solutions for your business needs

Companies in the EU are having difficulty finding suitable staff to fill specialist positions in sectors such as Information Technology and Engineering. The blue card will help EU employers who need to bring in foreign skilled labour to fill these type of specialist level jobs.

ICT Recruitment Solutions does not take responsibility if the applicant does not meet the requirements for the EU Blue Card/or Residence permit and if Immigration Authority refuse his/her application.

Consulting Fee are non-refundable!

EU Blue Card Overview

The EU Commission is pushing forward with a directive to implement a skilled immigration "blue card" which would allow migrants from non-EU countries to live and work in the European Union on a long term basis.

The blue card would grant a work and residence permit to non-EU citizens and would allow them to move to another member state after certain conditions are met. EU blue card holders would also be able to bring family members with them. Member states are moving forward with implementation of the blue card directive by summer of 2011.
